Bay Area Chamber of Commerce President's Message

Happy April, Easter is almost upon us – more candy. My husband and I are still finishing our Christmas candy, thank goodness we didn't get any for Valentine's Day. Thank goodness as well for grandkids, they come to visit and we feed it to them – don't tell my kids though. My office is a little like my kitchen, I think that I've just about caught up with all the important paperwork and then some more arrives in the mail. In talking to our chamber staff they seem to feel the same. We think that we just about have all our local businesses pegged and then we have more opening – how fabulous. Our area is really buzzing and for once our businesses are increasing not decreasing. I recently attended a meeting of our Ambassadors and what a busy group. Not only are they planning for the convention in 08, but are planning to do ribbon cuttings and openings. If you come to our weekly IBO's you will notice how many new businesses are springing up – and we're only in March. Come visit with us, toot your horn, and have fun.

Happy Easter.
Jenny Bream, President 2007

Customer Service Corner
"Make the Deadline"

A world-renowned computer company is well-known for their uncanny ability to deliver their products on time. Being able to meet or beat a customer's expectations is always a good thing. The computer company utilizes a simple, yet effective technique to consistently deliver on or before the day they promised.

They add a day or two to the drop-dead delivery date.

You might think that's cheating, but the result is a sterling reputation for delivery dependability. Not only that, most customers are giddy when their new computer arrives a day or two earlier than expected.

The lesson is a good one for anyone in business. Under-promise, over-deliver. Put yourself in the position to always exceed your customers' expectations. That will make your customers come back to you again and again.
